

Dear Baroness Eleanor Elise,

It is with great embarrassment that I write to inform you of an egregious error that was made during your saining. Due to the Third Resurgence our staff has been massively depleted, which forced us to overhaul and review our Heraldic Roles in order to report to Her Majesty High Queen Lenore the true scope of the forces available to her.

In this overhaul we discovered that an unfortunate mistake was made during the process of your saining. At that time, another young sidhe Lady was being sained as well, one Baroness Elyssia Elianora. While you were sained with your appropriate names, titles and truenames, it would appear that the Houses from which you descend were mistakenly confused. You were informed that you were sained as being of House Eiluned and she was informed that she was sained as being of House Fiona. Your oaths to these Houses were accepted because of this, but in reviewing both the records and the given inclinations of both you and Baroness Elyssia the error has become clear. You are in fact of Fiona's get, and she is of Eiluned's.

We have contacted the provisional Heads of the appropriate Houses, who have agreed that under these unprecedented circumstances it would be appropriate to release you from your current House oaths and accept you into your properly sained House. You may consider yourself released from your oath to House Eiluned. The deliverer of this missive is of House Fiona and is empowered by the House to take your oath in proxy.

Our deepest apologies for this egregious error, and our happiest felicitations on your new House affiliation.

A handwritten signature in black ink, written in a cursive style. The signature reads "Saer Tanastre Yves St. Laurent ap Eiluned". The letters are fluid and connected, with a large initial 'S' and 'Y'.

*Saer Tanastre Yves St. Laurent ap Eiluned
Grand Herald, Records Maistre
Autumnal College of Herald's*